MAN WHO HELPED PUT A STOP TO THE EARLY DAYS I.W.W.WHIPPED A BURLY LEADER OF THE GANG THAT TERRORIZED THIS CAMP.

Frank Horton, locator of the Diamondfield Daisy mine, which was one of the greatest stocks in the days of the first Goldfield boom, came back to the southern country from his home in Berkeley this morning just to look around and see what is doing in his old haunts. The Daisy mine was sold in New York for a million dollars and Frank Horton took his money and went down to the coast to spend the remainder of his days in righteous living and in full enjoyment of the good things of earth. The purchasers of the Daisy were so elated over the appearance of their investment that they bought half a block of ground across the alley from the John S. Cook bank and spent $60,000 in erecting a two-story stone office building fronting on Ramsey and Columbia streets. The building had scarcely been completed when the crash invoked by the L. W. W. came and the collapse ensued. The building reverted to the bank and the owners returned to New York.

These facts recalled the presence of Horton in Tonopah during the early days of 1903 when the I. W. W. tried to terrorize the people of this camp. They had the situation well in hand and were running the town to suit themselves when they took an old inoffensive Chinaman down the canyon and beat him to death. The remainder of the I. W. W. colony was placed in jail charged with murder and then the citizens took a hand and cleaned up the town so effectively that the wobblies were driven out of Tonopah. Frank Horton was an active member of the citizens' committee, but he had the initiative and the determination to rid the town of the worthless troublemakers. He selected the leader, a stalwart who weighed something over 200 pounds, and when he got through with the job the camp was minus a leader and Frank Horton had the credit of licking the biggest disturber in this district. The meeting oc-urred in the saloon of the Tonopah Liquor company. Horton had the nerve and the punch and as the big tramp ran out of the front door in triumph of Horton the crowd could not refrain from laughing. At every step the wobbly was belted of the floor by a vigorous kick from the digging boots of Horton and it is said that when the wobbly stopped running he was so sore about the seat of his pants that he could not sit down for a week.

MILLER EXPECTS TO UNCOVER BIG FRAUDS

Saturday's Reno Journal has the following:

A. Grant Miller, recent Socialist candidate for United States senator for Nevada, has been chosen to act as counsel for Harry Dunsmuir, elected on the face of the returns for justice of the peace of Tonopah, where he attended Judge Averill's court when the election contest was there set down with time to answer limited for December 5.

That the contest began by Gallager will not be the only one in Tonopah was indicated by Miller, who said the Socialist party expected to uncover evidences of wholesale frauds at the election. He said it had been reported to him that a sum approximating $3,000 had been contributed by mine owners, which was used for the purpose of securing the election of certain candidates. I. F. Davis, Socialist candidate for the assembly, and William Thomas, Socialist candidate for sheriff, probably will institute contests according to Miller.
